

FOX SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY

FACULTY POSITION IN OPERATIONS & SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

The Department of Marketing and Supply Chain Management in the Fox School of Business at Temple University invites qualified applications for a tenure-track (or, if appropriate, tenured) appointment at the Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor level. We seek applicants with research interests in operations management, including areas such as logistics and supply chain management, analytics, optimization, and behavioral operations. Candidates with a crossover interest in marketing and/or information systems will also be considered. The successful candidate will have a Ph.D. in operations management or a related field, as well as an outstanding record in research and a commitment to excellence in teaching. For further information about the MSCM department, please visit <http://www.fox.temple.edu/departments/marketing-supply-chain-management/>.

The highly regarded Fox School of Business is accredited by the AACSB and is the largest and most comprehensive school of business in the greater Philadelphia region, with over 9,000 students and more than 220 full-time faculty members.

Applications received by October 1, 2019 will be given priority, although we will continue to accept applications until the position is filled. We will be able to meet a limited number of candidates at the upcoming INFORMS conference in October.

To apply, please send a cover letter, CV, research statement, contact information for three references, and up to three sample publications to Professor Edward C. Rosenthal, Department Chair in the Marketing and Supply Chain Management department, at edward.rosenthal@temple.edu.

Temple University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer with a commitment to diversity in the workplace.