

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY
OWEN GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

Faculty Position in Operations Management and Quantitative Methods

The Operations Management and Quantitative Methods area at Vanderbilt University's Owen Graduate School of Management seeks applicants for a tenure-track faculty appointment starting August, 2019. The search is focused at the junior (untenured) level but candidates at all ranks will be considered. Applicants must have a PhD or DBA in Operations Management or related field by August 2019. The candidate will be expected to conduct innovative, impactful research and teach in the MBA program.

The Owen Graduate School of Management is engaged in graduate and undergraduate management education. It has an enrollment of over 550 students in its MBA, Executive MBA, Americas MBA for Executives, Master of Science in Finance, Masters of Accountancy, Master of Marketing, and Master of Management in Health Care programs. In addition, Owen School faculty members teach in the Vanderbilt University undergraduate business minor. The Owen School enrolls students from all parts of the U.S. and 35 countries. Founded in 1873, Vanderbilt University is an internationally recognized research university with student body of some 12,600 undergraduate, graduate, and professional students, and approximately 1,430 full-time faculty (excluding faculty employed by the Medical Center), of whom 52 have their primary appointment in the Owen School. The university is situated on a 330-acre campus located a mile and a half south of downtown Nashville.

Home to more than 1.5 million people, the Nashville metropolitan area has over a dozen colleges and universities and features many cultural and recreational amenities including a symphony orchestra, professional sports, an extensive park system, great restaurants, and live music offerings across a broad variety of genres. Major industries include healthcare, publishing, insurance and finance, education, and entertainment. Nashville is frequently identified as one of the best U.S. cities for work, family, and quality of life by various national publications.

We seek to attract a research active, culturally, and intellectually diverse faculty of the highest caliber, skilled in the scholarship of teaching, discovery, application, and integration of knowledge. The university's student body includes 30.8 percent minority students and 1,354 international students from 94 countries. Likewise, the Owen School is fully committed to a culturally diverse faculty and student body. More information about Vanderbilt's diversity, equity, and inclusion initiatives is available at <http://www.vanderbilt.edu/inclusion/>.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, a current vita, a statement of research and teaching interests and accomplishments (including teaching evaluations if available), three letters of reference, sample publications and/or working papers. All application materials should be submitted by October 31, 2018 through Interfolio at this link: <https://apply.interfolio.com/53417>

Preliminary interviews of applicants will be conducted at the INFORMS meeting in Phoenix, AZ on November 4-7, 2018. If you wish to be considered for a preliminary interview, please note this preference in the cover letter and submit your application before October 14, 2018.

Vanderbilt University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer committed to recruiting and retaining an academically and culturally diverse community of faculty. Vanderbilt has a strong institutional commitment to diversity in all areas and particularly encourages applications from minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and members of other underrepresented groups.