Faculty positions in Management Science and Operations
London Business School

London Business School invites applications for tenured positions at the Associate and Full Professor ranks in Management Science & Operations starting in the 2019-20 academic year. Applicants should be leading researchers in an area related to Management Science and Operations and show evidence of excellent teaching ability.

Applicants should hold a PhD in Operations Management, Management Sciences, Operations Research, Statistics, Economics, or a related topic. In addition, applicants should have a strong research record and an interest and experience in teaching at the MBA and PhD levels.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, research statement, representative publications and a complete record of teaching evaluations from the past 3 years by December 15th 2018. Materials should be submitted via Interfolio.

Inclusion and diversity have always been a cornerstone of London Business School's values. As such, we particularly welcome female applicants and those from an ethnic minority as they are currently under-represented within our faculty.
